

Easy ways to add zing to your foods

By Bill Daley
McClatchy Newspapers

Summer is all about chillin' outdoors, powering up the grill and watching stars sparkle in the night sky. Put some of that fun into your meals year-round with these simple tips for jazzing up familiar foods.

► Whatever you're cooking, season as you go with salt and pepper. Don't save these condiments for a last-minute sprinkle; the flavor won't penetrate or seem integrated into the food. Make sure to put salt and pepper on both sides of meat, poultry or fish.

► Use canned chilies, drained, or fresh sliced chilies, for a quick spot of heat on burgers, hot dogs or grilled-cheese sandwiches.

► Add a dash of Thai hot sauce to your next Asian stir-fry or main dish salad.

► Yank open that can of anchovy fillets. These oil-marinated fishies give an appealing funk to veggie pizzas.

► Mustard isn't just for hot dogs. Buy a Dijon mustard and stir it into pan sauces. Spoon it on a burger. Mix with mayonnaise and slather on lamb chops before broiling. Spoon a dollop into the vinaigrette before dressing a salad.

► Replace the ketchup on the burger with a spicy tomato salsa.

► Jazz up store-bought mayonnaise with a spritz of fresh lemon juice and a spoonful of extra-virgin olive oil.

Anniversary

VICTOR & LOUISE ISELI
CELEBRATE 50 YEARS

Love, family, and adventure mark Victor and Louise Iseli's fifty-year marriage. Born in Indonesia, Victor moved to Holland, pursuing a skilled trade. There, he met Louise van Ritbergen. They married in Amsterdam on July 3, 1959. Their first adventure was immigration to the U.S., settling in Ohio. In the Dayton area, they raised three children, Madeline, Alice and Victor, Jr. Victor retired from GM as a tool and die maker. Their adventures continue as they promote international peace traveling and hosting with the Friendship Force, participate with the Dayton Peace Museum and the Huber Heights Senior Citizens Center, and visit with their five grandchildren. An Alaskan cruise with immediate family set a fitting backdrop for their anniversary celebration. Friends and family are welcomed to an August 23, 2009 dessert reception at Madeline's home 38 Beverly Pl., Oakwood, Ohio 45419, 2-4p.m.
